

WE INVITE YOU TO JOIN VANCOUVER REVIEW'S MASTHEAD CIRCLE!

WHAT WE ARE: Now in our seventh year, Vancouver Review (VR) has been called a “New Yorker for the West Coast,” and The Globe and Mail pronounced us “Smart... but sexy too.” An award-winning culture and arts magazine with a focus on the Canadian West Coast, VR publishes BC’s most dynamic writers and artists. The magazine contains original articles, creative non-fiction, interviews, the Blueprint BC Fiction Series, reviews, photos, visual art and more. VR is an independent forum that places local culture and arts on the map.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY: By joining Vancouver Review's Masthead Circle, you can help foster BC’s culture and arts. Your financial support will ensure VR's long-term ability to pursue editorial excellence. Masthead Circle members may contribute at levels ranging from $5,000 to $25,000 per year, with a commitment of three years, to help provide a reliable, ongoing base of operating funding for the magazine. Members will be credited (unless they wish anonymity) in each issue and on the website, and will receive advertising privileges, subscription benefits and VR-branded goods (i.e. T-shirts, mugs and/or pens). Members will also be issued annual charitable tax receipts for their contributions.

OUR CHALLENGE: VR is published by the non-profit Vancouver Review Publication Society, which is also a registered federal charity. Revenues come from newsstand sales, subscriptions, advertising, government funding, donors and sponsorships. Like any arts organization, we need philanthropic support to help sustain us. Given VR's many awards, we invite you to join us in assuring its future through our distinguished financial support network — the Masthead Circle of individuals, foundations and corporations.
